

Breeder Tips from United All Breed Registry

Soothing harp music for dogs
by Pupsnap:

Click here for website &
sample tracks

Download a sample

from the album
Creature Comforts

by

www.petmusic.com

Originally published by email, March 2013

Soothing Music in the Kennel

Does it really help your animals?

Stressed out dogs can be a problem in any kennel. Whether from boredom, separation anxiety, unfamiliar surroundings or frightening noises, stress leads to all sorts of troublesome behavior in our canine friends.

Some may bark and become aggressive. Others will try to hide, vomit, shake or chew on themselves. It's clear that they sometimes need help to cope.

Breeders have told us they like to leave a radio or television on in the kennel, to help soothe their dogs. However, experts say this is not the best strategy. Studies have suggested that TV and radio can actually create stress for our pets because of the drastic changes in programming and the random mix of musical styles. Think about it -- how scared would you be if you suddenly heard gunshots, sirens, or dogs barking and thought they were in the room with you? The TV and radio certainly create "noise," but they don't necessarily create a relaxed environment.

There are certain kinds of music that are known to soothe both man and beast, and, happily, there are loads of places on the internet to find them. Here are just a few links to get you started in the right direction:

Listen to MUSIC MY PET In this year's Worldwide Pet Industry Association awards, the revolutionary new Music My Pet CD was second runner-up as the "Best New Product."

MUSIC FOR DOGS on iTunes explore iTunes for lots more that is available at low prices.

Check out CHILL DOG Pupsnap has the solution for super-anxious dogs with their CD of harp music.

